TRAILS OF VAPOR TELL STORY OF AIR BATTLE. High in the sky over Germany, ghostly trails of vapor tell the story of a battle between American Flying Fortresses and German fighter planes. The big Allied bombers leave quadruple plumes of vapor behind them, while the paths of the attacking fighters can be traced by the single trails stretching across the sky. This is an official United States Army Air Force photo.

JAPS DRIVEN FROM PLATEAU

Australians Follow 26-Ton Tanks To Oust Enemy from High Ground.

By The Associated Press

SOUTHWEST PACIFIC ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, Nov. 27—A menacing 2,400-foot-high jungle plateau from which Japanese had overlooked the New Guinea sector where the most important invasion of the southwest Pacific war is possible was in Gen. Douglas MacArthur's hands today.

Australians who had followed closely behind 26-ton tanks through dense growth stormed those heights yesterday at Sattelberg, slaughtered the Japs in their dugouts, drove survivors in flight along a trail to the north and seized abandoned field guns and military equipment.

Close to New Britain

Sattelberg, first major enemy position to fall since the capture Oct. 2 of coastal Finschhafen eight miles to the southeast, looks down on the Huon gulf where General MacArthur's ground troops are separated only by the narrow waters of Dampier strait from western New Britain. Loss of New Britain would tear apart Japan's entire south and southwest Pacific position inasmuch as Rabaul harbors the warships and planes for the defense of New Guinea, New Britain, New Ireland and the northern Solomons.

The capture of Sattelberg nine days after the drive opened was a feat accomplished by hard fighting, deadly accurate air attacks and brilliant work of American engineers.

The frantic defenders broke into the northern jungles after three forces of Aussies, moving in from as many directions, threatened them with encirclement.

Marion Seaman Is Awarded Citation for Rescuing Boy

A citation for "alertness and coolheadedness" in the rescuing of an 11-year-old boy from San Francisco Bay, has been received by Robert Dripps, seaman 1st class, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Dripps of 348 Cherry street, from the commanding officer of the 12th Naval District.

"Your actions," the citation reads, "alertness and the coolheadedness which you demonstrated during this emergency reflects great credit both to yourself and to the service and without doubt resulted in saving the life of the boy. The District Coast Guard Officer desires to commend you for the spirit and courage you have displayed."

The rescue occurred Oct. 11 when Seaman Dripps dove about 12 feet from his fireboat into 48 feet of water and saved the life of Robert J. Laws, who had slipped and fell into the bay while he and a companion were searching for suitable fishing grounds. The boy hit his head on the piling and was rapidly being pulled out into the bay when their cries attracted the attention of the watch on the fireboat. Dripps, the first man into the water, swam a distance of about 20 yards with the boy before reaching a raft, to which the men on the fireboat extended a ladder. The boy was taken to the Harbor Emergency hospital and later released to his home.

Dripps, who will celebrate his 22nd birthday anniversary on Dec. 18, enlisted in the Coast Guard in July 1942 and took his boot training at the Alameda base in California. He later took an eight weeks' course at Baltimore, Md., and then was returned to duty in California. He was graduated from Harding High school and prior to going into service was in the advertising department of The Marion Star and later was a salesman at the Montgomery Ward Co. store. His father, J. A. Dripps, is the immediate past commander of Bird-McGinnis Post No. 162, American Legion.

"The Barracks Watch," Coast Guard publication, carried an account of the rescue, together with a picture of the boy and Dripps and the man on watch and the fireboat, said to be the finest in the bay.

Nazis' New Big Bomber Not Great Success

By The Associated Press

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS ALGIERS, Nov. 27—Germany's newest big bomber, the Heinkel-177, which was used in an attack on a Mediterranean convoy yesterday, is almost as big as a Flying Fortress, but is "something of a failure," the allied airforce said today.

The new plane is 65 feet long with a wingspread of 103 feet, an inch less than a Flying Fortress. It has four engines, but only two propellers, each of which is driven by two engines working in tandem. It is designed to carry the heaviest bomb load of any German plane.

FULL PATTON REPORT ASKED

Senate Committee Acts After Flood of Letters from Parents Pours In.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Nov. 27—Spurred by letters from aroused parents, the senate military committee demanded today that the war department explain an official equivocation on the Patton soldier-cuffing incident and release details of any similar occurrence.

The committee had before it a report from Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower that he had expressed his "extreme displeasure" to Lieut. Gen. George S. Patton Jr., for upbraiding two hospitalized soldier victims of battle nerves in "an unseemly and indefensible" manner, ordered apologies which were made, and withheld a decision on relieving Patton from command of the Seventh Army.

Eisenhower gave every indication he considered the case closed, as did Secretary of War Stimson in submitting the report, but committee members had different ideas.

Asks Explanation

One senator said the group had asked for full explanation of a statement issued by a military spokesman at allied headquarters in Algiers last Monday, in which it was said Eisenhower had not reprimanded Patton, that no soldier had declined to carry out Patton's orders and that the general still was in command of the Seventh Army.

This was widely accepted as a

Russians Cross Berezina River To Deal New Blow To Nazis

Disorganized Germans Meet New Reverses Where Napoleon's Army Met Defeat in Moscow Retreat.

By The Associated Press

MOSCOW, Nov. 27—The Army newspaper Red Star said today that the Russians had crossed the Berezina river, inflicting a new blow on the disorganized German army along the stream where Napoleon's legions met final defeat during the retreat from Moscow.

Following up the victory at Gomel, Gen. Constantin Rokossovsky pushed far south White Russia west of the Dnieper river, outflanking the German base of Zhlobin, 50 miles northwest of captured Gomel, the army newspaper reported. The railroad running southwest from Zhlobin to Kalinkovichi was cut in yesterday's westward surge, when Soviet spearheads captured the town of Shatsilki, where the railway crosses the Berezina.

Rokossovsky's White Russian army reached the Berezina by a northward push along the west bank of the Dnieper, while other forces enveloped and stormed the fortress city of Gomel east of the river.

Red Star said a heavy artillery barrage and rails by the Red air force drove the enemy from the right bank of the Berezina, which flows southeastward into the Dnieper, 20 miles below Zhlobin.

Fan Out Along River

Advance spearheads stormed into the towns of Nizhnia and Olba, forming the strongest knot of German resistance in this sector. Then they fanned out along both banks of the Berezina, striking north and northwest to sever the Zhlobin-Kalinkovichi railroad.

Red Star said the Germans still were holding out along the Berezina to the northwest and were offering stiff resistance.

Rokossovsky's triumph at Gomel opened the way for a possible general advance toward Pinsk and Brest-Litovsk, chief cities of the former Polish province of Polesie.

Gomel, last German-held bastion east of the Dnieper river, fell yesterday after a siege which began Oct. 13, three weeks after Rokossovsky's troops crossed the South river above the strongly-fortified Nazi base.

Held up more than two months by powerful German fortifications, Red army troops, avoiding costly frontal attacks against the strategic stronghold, pushed west from the South in outflanking maneuvers to the north and south. Wednesday's breakthrough at Propoisk, 60 miles north of Gomel, completed isolation of the beleaguered German garrison and decided the outcome of the battle.

Reds Pour Past Gomel

Today Rokossovsky's troops were pouring through the Gomel gap, extending their control on the east bank of the upper Dnieper. Red army advance guards already were reported far west of the river south of Gomel. The Russian communique early today said Soviet spearheads had reached the railway town of Kostyukovka, eight miles to the northwest on the line where the

Colombia Formally at War with Germany

By The Associated Press

BOGOTA, Colombia, Nov. 27—The senate approved a government statement today recognizing the existence of a state of belligerency between this nation and Germany.

The action followed official announcement last night that a German submarine had sunk the Columbian schooner Ruby Nov. 17 in the Caribbean, the second Colombian vessel to fall victim to a U-boat since war began.

Bulldog Courage of Marines Credited in Tarawa Capture

By The Associated Press

PEARL HARBOR, Nov. 27—Lt. Col. Evans F. Carlson, Marine hero of Nicaragua, Makin and Guadalcanal, explained in three words, "determination, tenacity, courage," how a few battalions of leathernecks were able to annihilate nearly 4,000 Japanese imperial Marines and capture Tarawa, main air base in the Gilberts, in 76 hours.

"Those boys really did the job," said Carlson, who as an observer landed Nov. 20 with the Marines at Tarawa and made daily trips through machine gun and mortar fire to report to the flag-ship.

"Everyone of those boys was tenacious and determined," he asserted in an interview.

"The Japs might have exterminated them with an organized counter-offensive the first night but they couldn't have driven us off."

(Secretary of Navy Knox said at Washington American losses were heavy but that the enemy's were much heavier.)

"It was by far the toughest job I've ever seen. It was one of the toughest battles ever fought in the Marine corps' (168 years) history."

Cooperation of warships in pulling Japan's installations on Tarawa and the Army and Navy aerial bombardment played a big part in its capture, Carlson said.

Carlson said of the capture of Betio, main island of the Tarawa atoll:

"It was the first time American boys assaulted the island for occupancy. (Carlson led the Marine raiders who devastated Makin in August, 1942 but that was a hit-and-run strike). The whole carefully planned operation. The Navy's big guns and aerial support was important but the occupation itself was a blood and guts operation.

"Many had to disembark and walk in 300 to 400 yards through fierce gunfire.

"The Japs were entrenched in [illegible] shelters built from coconut logs filled with coral sand and [illegible] pillboxes and block houses [illegible] of concrete.

"It took heavy gun fire to open them up," said Carlson.

BERLIN TAKES ANOTHER BLOW

Stuttgart Also Target of Raid After 1,000 U. S. Planes Hit Bremen.

By The Associated Press

LONDON, Nov. 27—The RAF's heavy bombers struck Berlin, greatest of all German targets, a [illegible] great force with heavy burdens of explosives and incendiaries last night in the campaign to ruin it from Adolf Hitler's reich.

The fifth successive strike at the German capital and the third heavy assault since Monday night was accompanied by a simultaneous attack on the major industrial center of Stuttgart, 300 miles to the southwest.

The two-ply blow split German defenses, but nevertheless enemy fighters were more effective in stemming the waves of attacking aircraft and the air ministry announced 22 bombers had failed to return from the twin operation.

This compared with the loss of 26 bombers on the first night of the campaign and 20 on the second.

The operation brought a new 24-hour record in the deluge of bombs on the enemy's vital centers.

With Thursday night's RAF attack on Frankfurt-Am-Main and a record blow by nearly 1,000 American planes at the North sea port of Bremen yesterday, the total tonnage probably was considerably over the 4,000 peak of Nov. 3 when the United States air force bombed Wilhelmshaven and southern France and the RAF hit Duesseldorf.

Greatest U. S. Force

The greatest force of Flying Fortresses and Liberators ever employed flew against Bremen and with their escorts totaled nearly 1,600 planes. They lost 30 of their number and destroyed 56 Germ... in aircraft.

Fires from previous night assaults were still blazing in Berlin as the heavy bombers roared over, and the air ministry said the new blow "was concentrated and [illegible] effective" with the weather good for spotting the [illegible]

The world's most-bombed city now probably had received a new load of around 14,000 long tons of bombs this year.

Even before last night's deluge [illegible] 25 to 30 per cent [illegible] according to an unofficial [illegible] expert just arrived in Sweden from the reich.

At Stuttgart, one of Germany's major centers of airplane, submarine engine, tank and truck production and an important rail [illegible] on the route to Italy, large fires were ignited, particularly around the railroad yards, the air ministry said.

16th Raid on Stuttgart

The city was bombed by the RAF on Oct. 7 in a joint attack with Ludwigshafen. Last night's was the 16th raid of the war.

The heavy great force" which raided Berlin and Stuttgart last night went out in three [illegible] which thundered over the reich for 45 minutes.

Soon afterward, the Germans in the second successive night [illegible] England succeeded in [illegible] 100 planes through to the London area. A few bombs fell and several persons were killed.

The second American operation yesterday probably involved 600 or more Fortresses and Liberators.

The loss of 29 was the heaviest since the second on which fell on the town against Schweinfurt Oct. 14.

Last night's raid was the 19th in a month a month that probably [illegible] a record weight of bombs dumped on the enemy. In the record peak month of August there were 22 raids but the [illegible] bombs probably was [illegible]

DEATH COMES AT HOME AFTER BRIEF ILLNESS

Stricken with Heart Attack Last Night, Dies Shortly After Noon Today.

Dwight J. Shelton 57, president and general manager of the Marion Steam Shovel Co., died suddenly at his home southeast of Marion about 1 p. m. today.

Death was caused by a heart attack which had confined him to his bed since last midnight.

His family, Mrs. Shelton and son Hubert, who has been making his home at Caledonia, were at his bedside when death came. A physician also was in attendance.

Only the closest friends and business associates of Mr. Shelton knew of the heart attack he suffered last midnight, but his condition was immediately considered grave.

The attending physician had hoped to be able to have Mr. Shelton taken to a hospital, but decided his condition was too grave to permit him to be moved.

Mr. Shelton had occasionally suffered slight illnesses before, but none approaching the seriousness of the one last midnight. Even in view of the seriousness of the attack, his death was sudden and unexpected.

President Since 1941

Mr. Shelton had been president and general manager of the company since Oct. 16, 1941.

Prior to that he had been vice president in charge of sales and engineering, and throughout virtually all of his business life had been connected with the company in various capacities. Associates said he had been with the company 34 years.

He had been in good spirits and apparent good health in recent months, and was at his office regularly, including yesterday.

Employe Since 1907

Mr. Shelton became an employe of the company a short time after his graduation in electrical engineering at Ohio Northern university in Ada in 1907.

He obtained his high school and elementary school training at Broadway, Union county, where he was born and reared. He and Mrs. Shelton made their home on the Richland road a short distance southeast of Marion.

He first went to work for the company as a shop maintenance employe, was advanced to assistant chief engineer, a position he held for about five years, and then was made chief engineer, holding this title for two years before becoming vice president.

As vice president he was at first in charge of sales and the engineering department and later extended his activities to virtually every department of the company.

Mr. Shelton was elected to the presidency of the company when J. H. Wattera resigned the presidency to become head of the Union Asbestos & Rubber Co. of Chicago.

Mr. Shelton was a member of First Presbyterian church and a former trustee of the church.

He was a Mason, holding memberships in Marion Lodge No. 79, F. & A. M., Marion Chapter No. 62, R. A. M., Marion Council No. 22, R. & S. M., and Marion Commandery No. 36, Knights Templar.

FARMER SUBDUED AFTER KILLING CHILD

By The Associated Press

WEST UNION, O., Nov. 27—Paul Trefz, 32, farmer, shot and killed his motherless five-year-old daughter and only child, Nadine, today, and battled Sheriff Grimes Morgan until he was blackjacked into submission, Morgan reported.

Morgan said the slaying occurred at the farm home of Trefz's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Clifton Trefz, three miles east of this Adams county seat, shortly after 9:30 a. m.

The elder Trefzes, witnesses to the shooting, were quoted by the sheriff as saying their son recently had been "carrying on," frequently becoming enraged at seeming trifles.

He became angered similarly today, Morgan said, and as the child and her grandparents occupied the kitchen of the home, obtained a gun and without warning, shot the girl.

Morgan responded to a telephone alarm and said he had to beat Trefz into submission before taking aim to county jail.

Trinity Baptist Congregation Gets Letter from Its Pastor, Now a Naval Chaplain

Members of Trinity Baptist church received recently a letter from Rev. J. B. Holloway, now a chaplain at the amphibious training base, Camp Bradford, Naval operations base at Norfolk, Va., which tells of his experiences in his new position. He was stationed there in September and Dr. Warren P. Behan came to Marion at that time from Flint, Mich., as interim minister in the absence of Rev. Holloway.

A copy of the letter to the congregation follows:

"I have been at my new station just a little over a month, but so much has transpired it seems a much longer time. Needless to say, I miss all of you and think of you often. My work is intensely interesting and I am enjoying it and trying to make every day and every contact count the most for Christ. The officers and the enlisted men on the base have received me most cordially.

My Sunday program begins with a service for the men in the brig at 7 o'clock and our regular morning service for the base is held in a recreational hall at 8:15. I am always guaranteed an audience at the brig and usually have a good crowd at the regular service, even though it is voluntary and 8:15 in the morning is pretty early for Protestants to attend church, you know. On the first Sunday in October we observed World Communion Sunday with no one to assist me except my yeoman who kept refilling the trays behind the scenes. They came to the front in good 'Methodist fashion' and the entire service, including the singing, announcements and sermon, lasted just a little more than an hour. We had them to register and letters were sent to their homes the following week. We have had gratifying response to those letters from all over the country and that I call my 'fan mail'. We are organizing a Sunday evening vesper and religious discussion group which I believe has great possibilities.

We have started a string ensemble which greatly aids in the music and expect to organize a choir very soon.

"The office work is very heavy, consisting of interviews of all types and descriptions, correspondence on family relations,

REV. J. B. HOLLOWAY

Red Cross investigations for emergency leaves and a multitude of miscellaneous duties. Some days I use the telephone so much my ears grow tired and other days the line of men for interviews and conference fill the office to overflowing. The work is hard and often requires extra hours at all times of the day and night, but the privilege of serving men in distress or even in despair by advising them, sometime talking them out of going AWOL or doing something else as drastic and helping them to find a solution to their practical and spiritual problems is, indeed, real satisfaction to the Chaplain. The challenge is so great and the need so intense, I sometimes wish I could multiply myself ten times.

"I rejoice to hear good reports about the work there and the cordial reception you are giving Dr. and Mrs. Behan. I am sure the church will go forward in a mighty way if that fine spirit of cooperation continues. You have my sincere prayers and best wishes individually and collectively. Faithfully, your Chaplain-Pastor."

[illegible] today raising Salerno [illegible]
[illegible]rmans moved to a [illegible] take care of them [illegible] today.

This was the Fighting 45th' infantry division, which had won its battle spurs in Sicily, and its compact helmet roll back the Germans when the Nazis for a few critical days stalled the troops who had made the original American landing on the Italian mainland at Salerno.

The 45th is made up largely of troops from Colorado, Oklahoma and New Mexico, including more than a thousand Indians, although it has contingents from several eastern states.

It is one of the most colorful in the Army, but what is more important, it is rated as one of the hard-hitting outfits over the top.

It made its battle debut in an amphibious assault against Sicily after only a short pause in Africa enroute from the United States, and its performance under fire caused running officers at allied headquarters to hail it as a complete vindication of the American training program.

"This division's outstanding record is proof that our training camps are graduating troops full fledged and ready for combat," said one general.

In the Sicilian campaign, the 45th was the first to wedge through to the north coast and cut the island in half, returning to the battle-front late in the campaign for Messina.

After smashing ashore along an 18-mile strip east of Gela, the 45th captured a thousand square miles of Sicily in three weeks.

These troops also marched 140 miles in 14 days while fighting continuously, captured more than 6,000 Italian and German prisoners, took the Comiso and Biscari airports, took the towns of Vittoria and Caltanissetta, knocked out eight giant Nazi Tiger tanks and a number of smaller enemy mechanized units and captured huge stores of enemy ammunition, food, clothing and medical supplies.

The lads were so anxious for action in the early days of the Sicilian campaign they even poached on Canadian territory.

A platoon of 30 men captured the town of Ragusa which the Canadians had been assigned to take—and were holding an Italian garrison of 250 men prisoners when the Canadians arrived. They then turned over the prisoners to their allies and returned to their own division.

Many members of the division take the greatest pride, however, in the job they did in dislodging the Germans from "bloody ridge" east of San Stefano on the north Sicilian coast.

It took three charges up an almost perpendicular rocky hill to gain the summit, but they made it. A hundred and fifty German bodies at the top testified to the stoutness of the resistance they overcame.

The Germans have a particular dread of the 45th fighting qualities because some of them believe the Indians are cannibalistic. The Indians enjoy this hugely and one Indian sergeant conducts his own "war of nerves" by gesturing toward his mouth as if hungry every time newly captured prisoners are brought in his direction.

Kitchen Fats To Be Worth Meat Points

By authorizing retail meat dealers to give housewives two meat points for each pound of fats turned in, the War Production Board expects to double its kitchen fats salvage which now amounts to about 10,000,000 pounds a month, OPA officials at Columbus have announced.

The new plan of exchanging points for fats saved goes into effect Dec. 13. Brown stamps which the retailer collects from War Ration Book 3 will be used until later when tokens are to be used instead of paper stamps. The tokens will be valued at one point each. They are designed for making change.

The fats are needed for making vital war munitions. Retailers will continue to pay four cents a pound for the salvaged fats in addition to giving two points for each pound.

EIGHTH ARMY EXTENDS GRIP ALONG RIVER

Clark's Troops Smash Two Nazi Thrusts as Weather Clears in That Area.

By The Associated Press

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, ALGIERS, [illegible] — British Eighth army troops have slashed forward [illegible] toward their bridgehead [illegible] the swollen Sangro river with [illegible] seen over two feet and in some places is now a thousand feet wide, it was announced today.

American troops of Lt. Gen. Mark W. Clark's Fifth army smashed to enemy lines to west of Venafro as the weather improved in that sector of the Italian front.

In the air war American heavy bombers pounded rail facilities on the west side of the Italian peninsula, hitting at Rocco near Genoa and at Rimini on the Adriatic coast.

Meanwhile, it was announced at least ten German bombers were blasted out of the sky last night when a force of 30 Nazi planes attacked an allied convoy in the Mediterranean. The convoy suffered only slight damage.

Enemy infantry forming for an attack in the Mignano region of the Fifth army front was broken up by heavy artillery fire from American batteries.

The Germans were reported installing new field fortifications on the slopes of Mount Camino and entrenching themselves along both sides of the Via Casilina, the most direct road to Rome.

Strong forces of light and medium bombers pounded the enemy's front line positions throughout the day yesterday.

A viaduct was the target of Flying Fortresses at Rocco and photographs showed the span probably was hit three times and rendered unserviceable.

Flying without escort American Marauders laid a heavy concentration of bombs in the center of Cassino, an important base for German troops defending the main route to Rome.

The airforces also gave direct support to the advance of the 8th army's ground forces on the Sangro.

A blistering attack was made on enemy positions facing the bridgehead near the mouth of the river.

"The Eighth army troops moved forward while the bombs were dropping ahead of them, forcing the Germans to give ground," the official announcement said.

U. S. Fleet Doubled in Eleven Months, 40 Carriers Added

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Nov. 27—The United States fleet—largest in the world—has been doubled in 11 months and now bristles with 817 fighting ships, including more than 40 aircraft carriers.

Navy Secretary Knox, disclosing the size of the fleet, voiced a prayer the Japanese fleet soon may be drawn into action and wiped out.

Knox announced yesterday construction of 419 new ships in last 11 months—more than a ship a day. The 21 American warships lost since January 1 will be made up "within the next two weeks," boosting the total combat strength to 838 vessels he said.

Aircraft carriers made up a large share of the new construction—40 new carriers of all types completed in 1943.

In addition, approximately 230 of the scrappy little destroyer escorts have gone into action.

The first of this type was completed last February with a goal then fixed at 260. Knox said the quota has been filled 90 per cent—approximately 234 ships—and will be exceeded by the end of this year.

He reported "gratifying results" in steady increases in the size of the submarine fleet and said Navy combat planes will more than treble in number "with several hundred planes to spare."

"Although 1943 has the bumper year in Navy production 1944 is scheduled to be even larger," he declared. In terms of dollars, Knox said, 1944 increases will be $1,300,000,000 in ships and $1,400,000,000 in planes over 1943 expenditures.

Bucyrus Girl Is No. 4 in Recruiting Drive for WACS

Margaret J. Kruse of Bucyrus has enlisted in the Women's Army Corps making the fourth enlistee from the area served by the Marion recruiting office since the nationwide recruiting campaign opened earlier in the month.

Miss Kruse graduated from Bucyrus High school in 1939 and is employed there in the F. W. Woolworth store. She is the daughter of Mrs. Dorothy Kruse of Bucyrus. She was to report to Columbus today and will go from there to Daytona Beach, Fla., for her basic training.

The goal set at the time of the official opening of the WAC drive was 3,695 for the state to replace the number of casualties then reported. During the campaign which closes Dec. 7, those who enlist will serve together as a state unit.

EARLY EXPERIMENTS

Years before the rubber shortage, the plumbing industry began to experiment with plastic seats, says the Plumbing and Heating Industries Bureau. As a result of this research work, new types of black and white seats made of plastic moulded on a core of cross-grained laminated hardwood have recently been introduced. The plastic seat is said to be rust-proof and acid-resistant and may be easily cleaned with soap and water.

OIL REMOVER

To remove oil that has dripped from an automobile onto a garage floor, sprinkle a generous quantity of dry portland cement over the area, and as soon as it becomes saturated remove it. Do this until the cement cannot absorb any more oil, then scrub the floor with a hot solution of trisodium phosphate or washing soda, at least two pounds in each pail of water. Rinse with clear water.

CURTAIN PROTECTION

To keep bedroom curtains from blowing out the open window, hang a dress hanger in the center of the curtain rod and loop the curtains out of the wind through the hanger. The curtains will muss only slightly and will be saved too frequent launderings.

No Freeze on Parts Needed for Repair of Heating Plants

There is no freeze on the materials needed for the repair of hot water and steam heating plants, or on replacement parts, says the Plumbing and Heating Industries Bureau. The bureau points out that the WPB has recently liberalized the order controlling the manufacture of cast iron boilers so that more parts will be available during the 1943-1944 heating season.

The new order, says the bureau, permits boiler manufacturers to produce as many component parts for cast-fired boilers during the last six months of this year and the first six months of next year as they made during the corresponding months of 1940.

Reports from heating and piping contractors received by the bureau indicate that the public has responded to the appeal for earlier checking and servicing of heating plants. Some of the oldtimers in the hot water and steam heating business say that never in 40 years have they known so many orders for repairs and replacements to be placed in July and August.

Because of the wear and tear on heating plants caused by the severe winter last year, sales of, repairs and replacements, including boilers to replace worn out boilers, are running unusually heavy this year, the bureau says. Due to the scarcity of boilers and replacement parts during the last heating season, many boilers which normally have been replaced were "doped up" and made to last for another heating season."

While many boilers have given 30 or more years of service and, indeed, some boilers are now in their second half-century of service, other boilers may need replacement because they are beyond repair. The bureau says that WPB officials will not question the need for the replacement of a boiler if it can be shown that it is beyond repair.

THE GARDEN CLINIC

By VICTOR H. RIES
O. S. U. Extension Floriculturist.

Q. Several years ago, I purchased a couple of plants of the bayberry shrub, hoping that I would have a bountiful supply of lovely bayberries each fall to use for decoration in my home. Although the shrubs are growing very nicely, they do not have any berries on them. What can I do to make them fruit?

A. The bayberry is one of the relatively few woody plants that have sexes on separate plants. That is, there are female plants and male plants. If you have female plants you will get no fruit setting unless you have at least one male plant nearby to pollinate them. Usually, if you have a group of three or four plants you will have both male and female in the group. Since the nurseries usually do not bother to separate the plants, you can buy two or three more plants and take a chance on their being the right kind, or you might be able to go to a nearby nursery and pick out one with berries and one without berries.

In answer to the question that is usually asked following such advice, "how do you tell the sexes apart," the only possible way is by examining the flowers. The male plant will have pollen bearing stamens and the female plant will not have, but instead will have seed bearing pistils in the center.

Precision Bombing Not Discredited

THE too easy deduction that British saturation bombing of Berlin challenges the United States strategy of precision bombing in daylight raids remains unsupported by the record. It is still the judgment of bombing experts of both air forces that the two types of operation are complementary. The American tactic of destroying specific and relatively small strategic targets, with emphasis on exact placement, promises to destroy as much of Germany's war potential in the long run as the night raids of the British, with emphasis on tonnage and general destruction. The British method may do more damage to German morale, but the American method is more damaging to German war production.

Unfortunately, precision bombing depends on proper weather conditions; it cannot be practiced in the kind of weather which helps the British night bombers. From now until spring, according to Undersecretary of War Patterson, our own forces will be relatively inactive. Weather also will slow down the operations of the British as winter closes in. Perhaps that is what the Germans are counting on most heavily. They must realize, as the British did when London was being destroyed, that sustained operations would paralyze them, not because their will to last it out would fade, but because their ability to fight back would be by their own confusion.

Judgment by Hindsight

SECRETARY OF INTERIOR ICKES makes a good point when admitting his reluctance to be severely critical of projects begun under pressure of an impending defense crisis. Such projects, he contends, are the Alcan highway and the Canoil petroleum field in Canada; he suggests in connection with a Truman committee hearing that both should be examined in the light of subsequent developments. An honest appraisal now might avert further waste of public money.

Judgment by hindsight will become more common and considerably more penetrating as the war wears on. The transition from the war period when everything seemed necessary, to the period when a great many things are destined to become unnecessary cannot be made without biting recriminations at worst and the stirring of honest doubts at best. All kinds of things were undertaken at the outset of the war which later were not justified by developments, and this is still going on. It will last until the war is over and spending becomes a peacetime failing.

The United States boasts that it never has lost a war, but it never has been able to boast that it won a war at minimum cost. In two World wars its war effort has been released at a maximum of expense. Wealth and energy have been expended in all directions at once. We have tried by profligate use of money to overcome the handicaps of unpreparedness and lack of vision. Nothing has seemed too great or too small to spend money on, from a seven-ocean navy to thank-you letters for War Bond purchasers. When it's all over and the cost is counted, it will be painfully evident a lot of cash was dumped down the drain. Mr. Ickes is one of the first to hint at coming events.

Everybody Is Against Taxes

THERE seems to be no possibility of a tax bill calling for more than about two billion dollars of new revenue. While this is a substantial boost, it falls so far short of the treasury's recommendation for 10½ billion that congressmen are taking credit for being against taxes.

That is the politically expedient position to take at all times, but now more than most times it needs to be appraised by taxpayers. It has no relationship to the heavy spending of the immediate past, the present, or the future. No congressman who stands opposed to tax rates in proportion to the spending rate, while making no effort to reduce the spending rate, is being intellectually honest with himself or his constituents. He is evading responsibility for his own decisions.

The fact is that the treasury's recommendations were only a small reflection of the financial obligations undertaken by the government. Merely to say that the treasury wanted too much without saying at the same time that congress, itself, has given the administration authority to spend too much is to confess unwillingness to face the consequences of going along with the administration on its spending recommendations.

The house of representatives is ready to approve its ways and means committee bill, and the senate is expected to fall in line, too. It would be a lot more gratifying to the taxpayers who are supposed to be grateful for this wind tempered to the shorn lamb if they could feel sure that appropriation bills henceforth would be subject to the same policy of paring down administrative recommendations.

IN HURRY UP ERA

Back in the 1800s our forefathers could miss a stage coach and cheerfully wait several days for the next one. Today many of us set up a squawk if we miss one section of a revolving door.—Frank Briggs in Macon Chronicle-Herald.

Boondoggling on Global Basis

From "Men in Motion" by Henry J. Taylor.

These extracts from the Taylor weekly broadcast were prepared for publication in this form by the author. Taylor, who returned recently from a journey to Africa, Palestine, Syria and Turkey, has been broadcasting from the battle fronts of the world.

I HAVE just returned home after observing the impact on European minds of American promises regarding what the United States will do for the people of the world after the war. It is very deep and sky to be misinformed in the world. [illegible] promises and unthinking approval attitudes which Americans in the world will deeply regret. We are speaking and writing glowingly about post-war plans, [illegible] doing which we shall actually have little, if anything, to say.

The problems abroad are uneconomical. They are deep-rooted in historic tensions, charged with local prejudices and orders which date far back, and full of cross-currents and contradiction. Any one of these local problems—economic, social, political or military—is enough to baffle any European. Yet American words and pens are distributing promises everywhere.

Once you leave our shores, the only voices you hear speak about a Better World Order are either German, Japanese or American. American governmentalists in Washington are in strange company. And if our leaders were [illegible] they would see that, wherever the world resents the German idea of world influence as being repugnant to all free men, our own government's idea of excessive internationalism is also unacceptable.

The [illegible] of Europeans is within themselves. And so is the destiny of their worldwide colonial system. Talking about colonial freedom is one thing. Insuring that freedom is quite another.

EIGHTY per cent of the world's people simply are not ready for what we are talking about.

For a country whose own cities are in the most deplorable condition in their history, with vastly rich areas like Boston, Detroit and Philadelphia facing financial crisis in spite of maximum employment and maximum taxes, our government planners go far afield in trying to solve the colonial problems for the world.

In support of stubborn schemes for America's Better World Order, the credit and substance of our citizens are being expended now and pledged for the future in the same irresponsible way which made a scandal of the WPA.

Having abused the sound principle of emergency public works at home by using public monies to buy votes and political power and to stimulate political machines throughout the country, these same determined men have now put boondoggling on a global basis.

We set wage scales for labor abroad which makes it impossible for anyone else to hire a native man or woman wherever the American Boondoggling Corps operates—and they are everywhere. Authorities in these distant communities, who have the long-term responsibility for peace and safety are outraged. It is one of the most deep-seated cleavages among the governments of the United Nations.

There is the same hodge-podge duplication of federal offices abroad as in our own country. Nobody can make sense out of the swarm of United States government employes. They are a mystery both to the natives and to each other. They conduct negotiations independently of our ambassadors or ministers. They pay American cash to local politicians who are in opposition to the governments of countries friendly to the United States. They put such opposition "leaders" on their payroll and stage political vaudeville acts which they have to night out overnight. If their ideas run counter to the policy of our state department or embarrass the friendly nation's president or prime minister, as well as our ambassador, that is just too bad.

ANYTHING may happen when the representatives of our various and sundry government agencies show up. Take Bolivia. One fourth of the world's tin is produced there. Tin is sorely needed in the United States now. The Bolivian contingent of the American Boondoggling Corps has a program in Bolivia which has so much politics and so little economics that it is doubtful whether Bolivia's tin will last long in Bolivia for the balance of the war.

Coffee bulges all Latin American warehouse. We have allotted to each coffee-producing country a quota for export to the United States. The reason we do not get more coffee is not because there are not enough ships. It is because we have on the board of economic warfare men who had gumption enough to organize filling the quota whenever an empty ship was in any port where the quota had been fixed.

The government's policies abroad are undermining the morale of our troops. There is not the time to pay an American workman $1,600 a month to fix electric wires at Algiers while privates in the United States army, working on the same field, are paid $50 a month. This is not the time to build immense bases such as we are building in Eritrea with an understanding that only union labor be sent abroad. This is not the time to play into the hands of labor racketeers who require that any skilled American civilian electrician working overtime in Algeria be paid more per month than Gen. Eisenhower is paid. This is not the time for anything but victory.

A great injustice is being done by our government in permitting labor extortion in this war. They have no patience with the political ambitions of the men who make this possible. These soldiers will return bitter and mad, and they will demand a reckoning.

AS FOR our devious plans for a Better World Order—whatever that may mean besides the impoverishment of the United States itself—our fatuous assumption that we can set all well with words and dollars and a "police force" is a thoughtlessly impossible undertaking.

Here at home we shall be faced by every sort of readjustment. We must provide jobs for the returning American soldiers and for our present war-workers. We must work tirelessly to regain our solvency and to recover from the present huge drain on every resource we have. In this alone we face the greatest task in our history. We shall be in no position to lift the standard of living in China, in Russia, among 400,000,000 impoverished people of Europe, desirable as that is. There is no possibility whatever of our succeeding in such an attempt. There are a hundred places to start and no place to stop.

There is a limit to the failures Americans can absorb. At some point our statesmen failed, or we should not have suffered as we did in the depression. At another point our statesmen failed, or we should have been so strong on land, on sea and in the air that there could have been no war. Now they fall again if they saddle our citizens with the astronomical burdens of all the world.

The whole conception of giving or infusing the Four Freedoms universally is preposterous. It is not idealism. It is sheer political buncombe, and is so recognized abroad.

On the narrower question alone, the question of "freedom from want," anyone must know that the politicians of every country in the world will be pulling on us in a tug-of-war to get the most out of America's international WPA, exactly as our local mayors camped in Washington to get the most out of our WPA at home. We will be asked to provide "freedom from want" to at least a billion people, most of them in primitive surroundings and 400,000,000 of them in Europe. One hundred and thirty million Americans are in no position to do this. The promise of the United States is utterly fantastic.

BY IMMODEST promises and visionary plans many of our leaders immensely increase the possibility that the people of America will wash their hands of everything outside the 12-mile limit, good or bad, at the earliest possible moment, as they did after the last war.

If our leaders persist in their present course, we shall fail the world. We shall be unable to do what our leaders say we should do. In these circumstances we shall make enemies of our friends. No one will thank us for starting down the road, going as far as we can, and then chucking the whole business through the revulsion of our own people to a program which Americans know in their hearts is unsound and untrue.

The obligation to assist toward a better world and the value in doing so are obvious. Our duty, however, is to be useful, not according to our desires but according to our powers. We should recognize our own limitations and abandon the impertinent idea that a world it to be built in the American concept. We should put a limit on our total post-war aid, both in time and in dollars, and require that any aid should be restricted to whatever nations take certain elementary steps in their own behalf. Only thus can we make good our promises. Only thus can we maintain our own integrity and win the respect and friendship of the world.

Today and Tomorrow

By WALTER LIPPMANN

WE SHOULD dishonor ourselves and our cause if we did not face with a candid conscience our moral responsibility in the devastation of the German cities. For obviously we cannot be satisfied to say that we are now doing what the enemy did first. We reject his moral standards and, therefore, cannot stoop to justify our actions by his standards.

The immediate problem is clear enough: The German state through its armed might is holding captive, and indeed in slavery, most of the nations of Europe. Fortress Europe is a prison, which must be opened not only by breaking down the prison doors, but by attacking the jailers till they drop the keys to those doors.

In attacking the German people, whose sons are the jailers of Europe, many innocent Germans—women, children and old folk—perish. But if we refrained from attacking the cities like Berlin, Hamburg, Cologne, from which the subjugation of Europe is directed, implemented and enforced, still more innocent people of all sorts in the captive nations must perish.

Responsibility of German People

But there is an ultimate question which reaches the moral basis of the terms to be imposed upon our enemies when they are defeated and have surrendered. It is how far the people of Germany are to be held responsible for the acts of the German state. The question is profound and it is complicated. But we must begin to seek sincerely and humbly for the right answer.

Must we not begin—and I say this as a genuine inquiry—by examining this question: If the German people—not individual Germans as such but the German people organized as a sovereign state—are a member of the society of nations, can we deny the responsibility of the German people for the acts of that state without denying them their claim to form a sovereign state?

If it is true, as some maintain that the German people are not accountable for the fact that the German state has been a criminal menace to the world, then it follows, does it not, that the German people are not fitted for self-government. How can they be accorded the rights of a sovereign nation without being accountable for the results.

If, therefore, it is to be argued that not the German nation but only Hitler and his gang are accountable, it would follow that when we remove Hitler and his gang, the Allies rather than the Germans must govern Germany, govern it beneficiently and paternally if you like, but govern it.

The argument for regarding the German nation as innocent is, if we really examine it, an argument which ends in the conclusion that however kindly we treat Germans as individuals, as an organized nation on German territory the Germans are incapable of, or unready for, independence. For the nation cannot have the moral right of independence and sovereignty if the nation is to be absolved of moral responsibility.

It is often said that those who mean to hold the German nation responsible for the acts of the German state are unjust to the German nation. But in fact, as a matter of morals, the question at issue is whether the Germans as a nation are to be regarded as adults, endowed with the reason and with freedom of will and therefore morally responsible, or whether they are to be regarded as wayward children or criminally insane, who, lacking the capacity to distinguish between right and wrong, must be put in the custody of guardians.

Up to the Germans

When this ultimate issue is faced, we may see that those who wish to hold the German nation responsible are, though the material consequences may be hard, showing a higher human respect for the German nation and its future place in human society than are those who wish to treat the nation as morally irresponsible. For if the nation is to be treated as morally irresponsible, how can it ever be restored to an equal place among the nations?

This is, I venture to suggest quite tentatively, the root of the matter. If it is, then there follows from it the question of how, if the German nation is held responsible, punishment may be limited to the minimum necessary to be deterrent and the conditions set for redemption.

The answer to that crucial question cannot be given by the Allies. It is a fundamental principle that the German nation is human, has freedom of will and is morally responsible, the acts of the Germans can alone answer the question.

In so far as they punish their criminal leaders, they will relieve the Allies of the burden of inflicting punishment. In so far as they themselves act with moral responsibility, which means doing acts of repentance and reparation, they will restore their right to sovereignty and their place in human society.

Service Voters

The Choice in '44 Election to Be Influenced by Persons Running and Soldiers' Advice.

By DAMON RUNYON

THE SERVICE VOTE may be the factor in the next presidential election, opposite [illegible] from any other time in the matter.

The thing that seems to [illegible] is the poor [illegible] of the political information contained in the letters our soldiers and sailors are getting from home. One soldier has described it this way:

What he means, of course, is propaganda, not information. What he wants is the information necessary to the formation of an American citizen in the matter of voting in a few weeks. I am sure the views of an "intelligent" vote would be against Roosevelt just as a New Deal vote of an "intelligent" vote would be one of the boys.

What the Republicans fear is that the administration will take advantage of presenting the election to the soldiers and from a partisan standpoint. They are [illegible] by the senatorial bill proposed by senators providing for voting in the to be conducted by a nonpartisan [illegible] to be appointed by the President.

THEY also are fearful the propaganda will be transmitted through and they do not look for an even [illegible] that organization. I think the [illegible] of the Republicans should be to [illegible] didate whose name may be given such to the soldiers and sailors abroad. Nothing about anything else. The majority men are too young to have known any other than Roosevelt or even to [illegible] about some of the candidates mentioned Republican possibilities.

That is going to be the Republican difficulty in the exploitation of [illegible] against Mr. Roosevelt as far as service are concerned. I do not imagine the [illegible] will be permitted to make appearances speeches before the soldiers, though. If one side is allowed the radio appearance same privilege will be given the other side.

But it is lack of personal acquaintance will be the Republican candidate's difficulty among the service men, who all feel they know Mr. Roosevelt. I think he will get the majority of the service votes on that basis alone. The Republican possibility that soldiers and sailors who have come of age in the past year are more familiar with than any other is probably Tom Dewey.

ANY ELEMENT that might have some influence on the soldier and sailor vote, at least educationally, is the service press. No doubt that any of the service publications would be permitted to take sides, but they might be utilized as a means of presenting both sides, as is done by many newspapers in the United States.

That is to say, the service papers might publish the propaganda of the two political parties in parallel columns and let the boys choose for themselves between the two doctrines. The only drawback is that it would make it a matter of the better publishers and of late years the Democrats have a distinct shade here. But I know of no method by which the Republicans could break in presenting a candidate so far away by name to a large number of readers.

There is bound to be a lot of talk about by the older men in the ranks for their favorite candidate. They will influence more votes, more, I think, than all the propaganda that may be spread among the youngsters. Practically most of the older men were Democrats when they entered the service. I say presumably, for the last presidential election. But have remained steadfast 'mid the vicissitudes of '44 may hinge.

That is the question on which the election of '44 may hinge.

Drop in on Forest Fire

By The Associated Press
MISSOULA, MONT.—The forest service's parachute riding fireman, known as the firechuter, has gone a long way toward solving the west's forest fire problems.

So says the fire control chief of the northern Rockies who this fall, in a manpower shortage, protected millions of acres of forest lands from destruction with only a handful of forest fire fighters and a few planes.

The firechuter can reach the scene of an isolated forest fire quickly and put it out before it gets beyond control.

"In the last month of the 1943 fire season, just ended, with the woods under dry awaiting fall rains that didn't come, fire protection in the Rocky mountain forests was almost exclusively in the hands of 50 forest service firechuters," says Fire Control Chief Axel G. Lindh of Missoula forest headquarters.

"The astounding thing is that not a single woods fire became a major conflagration.

"Fifty men covering 30,000,000 acres of mountain wilderness during a drouth would have been a fantastic situation in the old days."

The parachuting method began in 1940 and got its major test this fall. The regular fire guards, who were 16 and 17 years old school boys, returned to classes in September, ordinarily the end of the fire season. Moisture usually blankets the mountain country in early fall, but this season was one of the driest in western history.

Lindh said even more efficient methods probably will be perfected in the post war period.

"The helicopter may revolutionize or even eliminate the firechuter entirely," he says.

A goverment-sponsored steel plant nearing completion in Brazil will raise that country's annual output to 570,000 tons.

SOMEWHERE IN TENNESSEE—The army's new spotty camouflage uniforms are supposed to conceal the wearer from the enemy, but they're just as invisible to friendly eyes. Recently the suits were issued to the men who do the paper work, under combat conditions, in the command post of an infantry division on maneuvers. The other morning Corp. Ben Van Dam, New York, slept until long after sun-up, just 10 feet from his field desk, while his buddies searched in vain for him.

The city paints them attractively and sets them at street intersections. The street names are painted upon the sides of the tanks.

FINALLY DELIVERED
By The Associated Press
CAMP CLAIBORNE, La.—Sergeant Bill Kearns mailed a Christmas card to Sergeant J. W. Campbell last year and it was delivered to Campbell in late September of 1943 after traveling for nine months and criss-crossing this continent several times. The payoff is that Kearns could have walked right up to Campbell and handed him the card. They live only 100 yards apart, and have for more than a year. Kearns thought Campbell was stationed elsewhere. As a matter of fact, Kearns is a member of the quartermaster detachment where Campbell gets his quarters and rations.

THEY GO TO BATTLE
By The Associated Press
CAMP CLAIBORNE, La.—"Henrietta" and "southern Select" are going to battle. They are vehicles in the 634th Tank destroyer battalion. Instead of identifying a vehicle by number, this battalion has named each tank, jeep, truck and command car after a brand of beer, or a cigar, or just about anything that happens to suit their fancy. Even the reconnaissance motorcycles have monikers. Scheme of the naming is that the first letter of a name indicates that vehicle's company. Thus "Assassin" is a company A tank, "Hopalong Cassidy" is a headquarters command car, and so on.

Air Express Vital Aid to War Effort

By International News Service

NEW YORK—The air express service is proving of vital importance to the war effort.

A recent survey shows that more than one-fourth of the matter flown consisted of machinery and metal parts. In case of breakdowns, replacement parts are flown across the country at a three-mile-a-minute pace making possible important economy in time and labor. The heaviest shipment of the year was a propeller shaft weighing 2200 pounds, according to the Railway Express.

The expense of air transportation is found to be trifling compared with the loss from idle machinery. The second classification of air express matter comprises newspaper and accessories. Drugs, serums and medical supplies come next in turn.

He was evidently waiting to grab me as I entered." She summoned neighbors and police who captured a 200-pound man. The prisoner was identified as a fellow who had attempted to attack a woman before he broke into Mrs. Bartholome's home.

DELINQUENCY CAUSES LISTED

Homes, Schools and Churches Share in Indictment in Youth Problem.

By International News Service

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. — The fundamental causes of juvenile delinquency were defined today by the Indiana High School athletic association as—"inadequate homes, crowded and inefficient schools, weak churches, weak-kneed enforcement agencies and namby-pamby welfare agencies."

"Delinquency in the last analysis is a social problem and as such must be solved by all of the agencies that deal with the young and the old" the IHSAA declared in an article issued to schools of the state. "The home, the school, the church and society are busy with something other than the training of boys and girls."

Athletic activities, properly selected, supervised and directed, have contributed and will continue to contribute to the prevention and cure of juvenile delinquency, the organization asserted in its publication. However, the main purpose of physical education is education and development of the physical being. The play spirit, high ideals of fair play and sportsmanship, morale building, observance of rules, social-mindedness, and other character traits that may be acquired through high school competitive sports are by-products, the article pointed out.

The IHSAA then went on to say that schools must share with other youth agencies in blame for juvenile delinquency. A three-point program was offered to increase the value of schools as a factor in preventing the increase of youthful crimes.

The steps suggested were:

1. Set up ways and means of examining boys and girls mentally, morally, socially and emotionally who "fall short" in some way.

2. Set up ways and means of diagnosing the cases of those who fall short.

3. Apply the remedies called for by the examinations and diagnoses. These remedies may be some or all of the following:

A. Morale building and discipline within the school to prevent shortcomings and misdemeanors.

B. Building of respect for rules and regulations, law and order.

C. Ordering of the entire school day of a student by providing work of a meaningful nature for the student throughout the day.

D. Build up a strong and virile public opinion in the school for things that are right and lovely.

E. Consider the school a hospital to the extent that students need study and treatment in order to improve. Those who fall short are sick in some way.

F. Eliminate the "get by" attitude in the school.

G. Provide recreational and play facilities, teaching personal and play programs for all.

H. Adopt rules and regulations and demand observance of these rules and regulations.

I. Strengthen and stiffen the academic work of the school.

J. Make definite requirements and insist that these requirements be met up by ability of each student.

The article also called attention to the fact that juvenile delinquency is not a new problem but meerely has been intensified by war. "While we have enough juvenile delinquency to concern us seriously, we have much more good behavior to make us proud of our young people," the IHSAA concluded.

FOR VICTORY—Miss Elsa W. Stone (above), 52, of Newton, Mass., teaches high school during the day, works as a welder at Boston Navy yard at night, farms Saturday, directs a choir Sunday. She has also donated eight quarts of blood.

PATTON

denial of reports broadcast in this country of the soldier cuffing incident until Eisenhower's headquarters later made available the information that disciplinary action had been taken against Patton.

The committee asked also for information as to any other incidents of this nature in which Patton might have been involved or in which any other staff officer might have been guilty of the same conduct. Eisenhower's report was the first official disclosure Patton had upbraided two nerve patients, instead of one.

One senator attributed the committee's inquiry into this aspect of the affair to an avalanche of mail from parents who demanded to know if Patton was accustomed to such conduct and if that was what might be expected of other American generals.

Eisenhower explained in his report that he personally had investigated incidents in which Patton had upbraided two men, one of whom had a temperature at the time, and had "cuffed" one so that his helmet rolled off.

Reports Patton Apology

Eisenhower said Patton had apologized to the men involved and to the officers of every division of the Seventh Army, who in turn relayed the apology to their men.

His investigation convinced him, Eisenhower said, that the men themselves felt Patton had done "a splendid overall job" in his driving direction of the victorious Seventh Army in Sicily and that "no great harm has been done" by his outbursts of temper.

Asserting Patton had been greeted with "thunderous applause" by his men on subsequent appearances, Eisenhower indicated he could not afford to lose a man of "unquestioned value as commander of an assault force."

Stimson supported this stand, observing Eisenhower is "responsible for all matters of discipline within his theater." Chairman Reynolds (D-NC) said the committee will meet next week to consider the Eisenhower report, which he added "by no means closes this matter." Democratic Leader Barkley (Ky) said he regarded the Eisenhower report as "very fair."

Flying Fortress Crashes Near Lockbourne Base

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 27 — A Flying Fortress crashed on a farm south of here today and at least five of its crew burned to death as they screamed for the help that two little boys standing helplessly by could not give.

The ship, on a training flight out of Lockbourne airbase, came in toward the field at low elevation and suddenly tipped its nose down, plummeted to the ground and burst into flames.

Don Van Gundy, 14, and Frank Gleinsner, 12, working with a tractor in a field, saw the plunge and dashed toward the ship.

"We heard them screaming for help, but we couldn't do a thing," Van Gundy said. "The flames were too big."

A captain from Lockbourne said five bodies were removed from the wreckage. He would not say whether others were aboard. Identity of the dead will not be disclosed until next of kin are notified.

JAP-MADE FLARES START FOREST FIRES

By The Associated Press

SALISBURY, Md., Nov. 27 — The accidental dropping of Japanese-made parachute flares was blamed today for starting several forest fires on the Maryland eastern shore.

Investigating authorities said the parachutes came from United States military planes, and that the chutes had been purchased before the war from the Japanese.

The first parachute dropped Nov. 15 within the Salisbury city limits, but was extinguished before causing damage.

Two forest fires in Dorchester county Thursday were blamed by District Forester Joseph T. Rothrock on similar flares, one of which was seen falling but was actually burned before being recovered.

Finding of the first flare here started an investigation by Army and Navy intelligence, the federal bureau of investigation, and Maryland state police. It fell on a day during which six forest fires were reported and brought the alerting of the forest service.

RUSSIA

Germans were fleeing toward Zhlobin, Brobrulsk and the White Russian town of Minsk through an escape corridor narrowed to 50 miles.

Two other Red armies were reported moving in for the kill. One, thrusting toward Zhlobin from the southwest, had reached Davidovka, the war bulletin said, and another was surging down from the north. Other Soviet forces were cleaning up in the Rechitsa area, west of Gomel.

(Moscow dispatches to London said 20 German divisions—Possibly 300,000 men—faced entrapment).

(The Paris radio said the Germans were trying to rush reserves into the Gomel area to hold the escape route open, but admitted "they were being delayed considerably by bad weather.")

Rokossovsky's armies today were advancing on a wide front, his vanguards less than 150 miles from the old Polish border and 400 miles from Brest-Litovsk. Warsaw lay 115 miles further west on the road to Berlin.

In the Kiev bulge south of Gomel, Gen. Nikolai Vatutin's first Ukrainian army continued to stand firm against fierce German assaults in the Korosten, Chernyakov and Brusilov sectors. The Russian war bulletin claimed a total of more than 7,000 Germans slain in all sectors of the front, from the Gomel area south to the Dnieper bend.

BERLIN

defenses to cover simultaneous blows against Berlin and other targets was brought into bold relief Thursday night when waves of RAF heavy bombers pounded Frankfurt while speedy Mosquitos were stabbing at the capital.

The German radio said the RAF bombers, in an attempt to deceive the Nazi defenses and to avoid bad weather, struck at the capital after detouring over southwest Germany. Fifteen of the raiders were shot down, the broadcast said.

The RCAF announced that the first Canadian built Lancaster—the Ruhr Express—took part in last night's raid.

Meanwhile, new reports of the effects of the previous attacks on Berlin came from neutral countries. A dispatch from the Swiss-German frontier said the bombings were concentrated mostly in the office area and that the best available reports placed the death toll at around 3,000.

U. S. Raiders From China Blast Japs on Formosa Island

By The Associated Press

HEADQUARTERS OF THE 14TH U. S. AIRFORCE, CHINA, Nov. 26—(Delayed)—Striking at a part of the Japanese empire itself, China-based Mitchell bombers and long-range fighters carried the air war to Formosa island in a Thanksgiving day raid that smashed the big airbase at Shinchiku and cost the enemy at least 31 planes.

All our planes and airmen returned safely from the big island fortress 90 miles off the China coast between the Philippines and Japan proper and astride the Japanese sea lanes to southeastern Asia and the southwest Pacific.

(The raid, announced first by the Tokyo radio Friday, was confirmed Friday night in a U. S. headquarters announcement.

(Chungking dispatches said the Chinese press jubilantly acclaimed the raid and Sao Tang Pao, Chinese army mouthpiece, declared it was "the opening of an allied air offensive based on China.")

P-38 Lightning fighters led the low-level attack which apparently caught the Japanese off guard with only a few planes in the air.

With air opposition knocked out at the start and enemy planes trying frantically to get off the ground, Mitchell bombers of both the 14th airforce and the Chinese-American composite wing covered the airdrome and installations with tons of fragmentation bombs. Then the blazing guns of the Mitchells and their fighter escort mopped up what was left.

Fourteen Japanese bombers were destroyed on the ground and six shot from the air; seven fighters definitely were shot down and another destroyed on the ground. Enemy planes shot down also included two German Junkers-52 transports and one German Stuka dive-bomber.

Crew members, who returned in time for turkey dinner, said the Shinchiku airdrome, on Formosa's northwestern corner, was left smoking from blazing planes and buildings.

The raiders, who escaped unscathed, said they stirred up mostly small arms fire and saw some Japanese firing from the ground with machine-guns. Three Mitchells picked up a few minor bullet holes.

Brotherhood Leaders Will Confer Dec. 3

By The Associated Press

CLEVELAND, O., Nov. 27 — Representatives of the five operating railroad unions will meet here Dec. 3 to "consider peaceful and legal means of withdrawing our members from their jobs in the event a satisfactory solution to our wage problems is not reached," President A. F. Whitney of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen announced.

He said the counting of ballots in a recent strike poll would not likely be completed before Dec. 5. A 30 per cent wage increase has been demanded by the brotherhoods, who rejected a four-cent hourly pay hike.

Not Too Much Hope Placed in Current Peace Talk Wave

Peace talk [illegible] again.

Many reports are wild that they have not obtained publication have been current for some days.

The phenomenon is not a new one, and frequently runs concurrently with situations like the present.

There are reports of prospective conferences between Roosevelt, Churchill, Stalin and possibly Chiang. Hitler armies are reeling in Russia, and the Italian front more and more resembles a hopeless bulging action. Allied observers estimate that three of four more raids like the recent big ones will wipe out Berlin, and Louis P. Lochner, who spent many years there as an Associated Press correspondent, says elimination of Berlin will probably eliminate Germany as a belligerent.

Reports on Von Papen

There are bound to be influential if non-active Germans who seek a way out. Paul Kern Lee, AP correspondent famous with Franz Von Papen's doings in Ankara, says that very slippery diplomat can be expected to try to pull a Badoglio any time he is in Germany—and he went there recently.

Careful observers were agreed, long before it was voiced, with the pronouncement of Lord Halifax that anything can happen now. They are agreed with Senator Downey's "many leaders of allied governments" that Germany's end could come by, or shortly after, Christmas.

But they are not betting much money that way.

It is quite possible that one result of a Roosevelt-Churchill-Stalin conference would be an announcement of what Germans can expect of the peace—just as a similar step regarding Austria was taken very neatly at Moscow and the German people might respond—as individuals.

But there is no indication yet that the German people have anything to do with the course of Germany. Nor that the Nazis are willing to get out, or could be thrown out. Instead, they are putting the clamps on tighter and tighter, in the knowledge that, once beaten, they will be going nowhere, with nothing to do when they get there.

Massacre Cited

Then, too, a country suing for peace might be expected to tell its armies to be very careful of their conduct. But we have just heard of a massacre in Italy because a girl's relatives killed a German in saving her from attackers. And Switzerland reports a Nazi threat to raze the ancient French city of Grenoble in reprisal from continued sabotage.

The German boast of a secret reprisal weapon to be turned against England within a few days fits in very nicely with the theories of those who believe actual peace moves are under way.

So do the German counter-attacks in Russia, Italy and the Aegean. Proof of ability to conduct a steadfast defense would be Hitler's first necessity if he intended to negotiate.

But the men who are fighting Germany testify to her continued strength. They do not feel that November, 1943, is quite the same as November, 1918. Many have expected a climax this fall, many more are sure that it is not far away; but still there seems little valid reason to doubt such men as Roosevelt, Churchill and Bracken, who also might agree that anything can happen, but who profess to count only on more and bloodier battles for the immediate future.

In 125 years the senate has sat as a court of impeachment 12 times, and has removed four men from federal offices.

"Bombs Away!" These bombs are leaving an American "fortress," somewhere over Jap installations.

The bombs we make today will be dropping on German cities, Japanese islands in a very short time. The home front must fashion them and pay for them with War Bonds.

FARM SLAYING

"The mother might have heard the shot and rushed her daughter just 60 feet away and came out on the screened-in porch to investigate, and [illegible] on the porch fired at her one missed, and then hit her with the next shot."

Hot cast a bullet found in a door sill indicated possibly the first shot missed Mrs. McCoy, entering the sill at an angle which would place the killer's gun to the porch floor when it was fired. After one bullet felled her, Mrs. McCoy was struck by at least six more, some 32 caliber steel-jacketed bullets from an automatic and others .38 caliber lead slugs.

"Whether you agree this a one-man crime or theorize two or more were in it," commented Eisenhower, "there are many angles that do not be up right."

Eisenhower said he believed all three members of the family were at the home before any was killed. He continued:

"We know that a car drove into the driveway shortly after dusk and went back to the barn, and that it was there when the girl drove up. Neighbors saw both cars.

"Later, they saw the car drive back to the house from the barn in the morning, only one car was there. The murderer or murderers—may have been in that first car.

"I believe whoever drove that car to the barn killed McCoy, then went back to the house and killed the women. Mrs. McCoy first then the girl.

"It is my opinion that telephone wires were cut within the house when the car first came up to the house. The wires were cut to prevent a alarm being sounded. We know the scissors used to cut the wire came from the house, proving the killer or killers—entered the house before committing the crimes. There would hardly be any reason to cut the wires after the only people who would use a phone were down."

Eisenhower said the assailant could have planned to kill McCoy if robbery was the motive, but might have had no intention of killing the women."

Robbery Angle

If McCoy was shot in the barn Eisenhower said, "the slayer still would have to get the money from the safe in the house.

"If we cling to the theory that he killed McCoy in the barn," Eisenhower said, "the slayer also had to get the money from the safe in the house.

"I believe he drove back to the house and demanded the money of Mrs. McCoy, an argument ensued and Mrs. McCoy was shot as she fled to the porch.

"The girl possibly ran out the door toward the car, was overtaken and killed."

Eisenhower said the killers then probably fled, Eisenhower said. Officers reported that no money or valuables were missing.

Mrs. McCoy's body was found beside her automobile. The hood of the car was raised, causing some investigators to conclude that one killer intended to disable the machine to prevent her escape.

The sheriff said several families heard shots Wednesday night, a single report first, a few minutes later a series of shots, then a final report. Neighbors differ also as to the time at which they heard the gunfire, Eisenhower added.

Asa Potts, a neighbor, told the sheriff today he heard all the shots distinctly. After the first one, he said he thought "McCoy got a rabbit." When the quick series rounded, he said he believed McCoy was shooting at poultry thieves, and dismissed it from his mind.

Senate Asks Report On Good Neighbor Spending

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Nov. 27 — Senate investigators, on the economy trail once again, asked Nelson Rockefeller, coordinator of inter-American affairs, for an accounting of funds spent in Central and South America in furthering the "good neighbor" policy.

Senator Butler (R-Neb) charged yesterday American money was being spent for "boondoggling" projects in Latin America, saying Uncle Sam has spent or obligated more than $6,000,000,000 there. The republican to the south, Butler commented, either considered this country a "sucker" or distrusted America's motives for the post war.

FREDDIE CASTS EYE ON PHILLY TALENT

By The Associated Press

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 27 — Pat Freddie Fitzsimmons, the one-time artful Dodger, took a firm grip on the Philadelphia Phillies reins today and galloped off in search of some new baseball talent.

"We have our eyes on what we think is a pretty good shortstop and we need a real catcher," said the manager after conferring yesterday for the first time with youthful Bob Carpenter, New Phillies president.

"Whatever Fitzsimmons wants in the way of players will be gotten for him—if the finances permit," added Carpenter, who had just declared that Freddie "is going to be the boss on the field and in the clubhouse."

Carpenter said he would formally offer Herb Pennock, veteran American league pitcher, the post of general manager.

Three Bowl Bids In Balance Today As Grid Curtain Falls

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, Nov. 27 — Three bowl bids, the eastern championship and Notre Dame's hopes for a perfect season hang in the balance today as the college football season grinds to a close.

Both sides of the New Orleans Sugar Bowl still are in the to-be-invited department as is Texas' Joe in the Cotton Bowl.

Army and Navy always demand top billing from ocean to ocean when they have so-so clubs, but this year, in a wartime atmosphere that has shuttled the game to West Point and limited attendance to 16,000, the interest is world wide and the football strictly top drawer. The eastern title is an added prize for the winner.

Notre Dame shoots for its first unbeaten, untied record since 1930 before an All-Navy throng of 22,000 at Great Lakes. The Iowa Seahawks meet Minnesota in their finale. Two unbeaten teams clash as Southwestern Louisiana faces Randolph Field. A post season bid is likely for the victor and possibly for both.

Georgia-Georgia Tech, meaning Johnny Cook vs. an injured Eddie Prokop, may hold the answer to another bowl riddle. North Carolina plays Virginia. Other southern feuds include Texas Christian - Southern Methodist, Southwestern Texas - Rice and Camp Lejeune-Jacksonville Navy.

Southern Cal has its final Rose Bowl prep against cross-town rival U.C.L.A., Del Monte Pre-Flight takes on California and Oklahoma meets Nebraska. A Lafayette - Lehigh encore and Brooklyn's finale at Rutgers serve to ring down the curtain.

NEW YORK — There's been quite a kettle of fish stirred up around the football tables because some of the "experts", and Notre Dame's grid opponents, insist on rating the 1943 Irish as the best pigskin performers of all time.

Coach Frank Leahy won't talk about the team until the season is over.

"It's terribly unfair to flaunt that sort of thing in front of the young fellers nowadays, particularly at V-12 schools," he says. "They are engaged in much more important work than winning a football game."

That's the way the Irish mentor left it after the Army game. But not Lt. Comdr. Edgar E. (Rip) Miller of Annapolis and Lt. Col. Earl (Red) Blaik of West Point. As long as the cake has been sliced let's all have a piece of it. Maybe we can get Leahy to take a slice later on.

First, Rip Miller, one of the famed seven mules of the undefeated 1924 Notre Dame has the floor:

"Notre Dame could have licked any team that ever played football, amateur or pro, the day it beat Annapolis.

"That 1924 team, when we had the Four Horsemen, was my original pride," smiles Rip, "but I washed them out after 1930. Then I thought that last team of Rock's was the best but players improve as the years go on, and now as an old Notre Dame man I am proud to say that this team tops them all."

Red Blaik echoes the same sentiments by saying:

"I've seen a lot of Notre Dame football teams. I always thought that the unbeaten '29 and '30 Rockne elevens were the best of all time. But this year's team has got them all beat."

Now just a minute boys. We're next. And, what better team could anyone nominate for all-time greatness than the Boston college Eagles of 1940?

There's something for Mr. Leahy to answer. Which team does he rate as the greatest? He coached both. As a result of his work with B. C. Frank went back to his beloved South Bend campus.

Ah, that Boston college team of 1940. There was a really super-duper outfit.

Remember, Mr. Leahy?

You had more than one good line and a set of backs on that undefeated Sugar Bowl team. When you sent in your second set of linemen, you didn't have to yank them and hurry the first line back as you did here in the Army game.

When those 1940 Eagles were playing, there never was any question about the quality of the reserves. You had at least two standout players for each spot.

Remember, Mr. Leahy?

Ask any sports writer about the All-America nominations in 1940. Practically every member of the first-string Boston college eleven received votes. Even some of the so-called reserves, too.

What football players they were! Remember such backs as Mike Holovak, Charley O'Rourke, Henry Toczylowski, Monk Maznicki, Adolph Kissell, Wally Boudreau and Mickey Connolly, just to mention a few?

Remember that line of Gene Goodreault, Henry Woronicz, Joe Manzo, Al Morro, Joe Zabilski, George Kerr, and all-America center Chet Gladchuk?

Remember those reserves of Eddie Zabilski, Don Currivan, Alex Lutachik, John Yaukoes, Rocco Canale, Leo Strumski, Steve Levanitis, Al Fiorentino, Joe Repko and Walter Dubzinski among others?

If they rate this year's Notre Dame football team as one of the greatest what would you call that 1940 Boston college team?

How about it, Mr. Leahy? Which team was the greatest?

The new "Walkie-Talkie" man-packed radio used by front-line troops has remarkable clarity of tone due to use of frequency modulation.

Chicago School Game To Outdraw Irish, Sailors

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, Nov. 27 — Notre Dame, the nation's top college football team, is playing in the Chicago Metropolitan area today, but a high school grid game here will outdraw the Irish-Great Lakes encounter by some 50,000.

The seating capacity at the training station field is 23,000, while a crowd of 80,000 was expected at Soldier Field for the 10th annual Kelly Bowl, city championship game.

CAREY PLAYER ON ALL OHIO TEAM

By GRANT DILLMAN
United Press Sports Writer

COLUMBUS, Nov. 27 — The Navy and Marines had landed and had the 1943 United Press All-Ohio college football squad well in hand today, capturing all but one position on the first eleven and winning a lion's share of second team posts.

Only civilian to place on the first squad was William Kramer, 20-year-old 155-pound Army medical reservist who beat out two Navy candidates for the quarterback spot with his generalship of Oberlin's state and Ohio conference champions.

The clever little change-of-pace runner quarterbacked the Yeoman to four straight victories after an opening game tie with DePauw and then shifted to the tailback spot where he played the next three games after two of Oberlin's backfield stars were transferred.

Otherwise, service stars, many of them from out of state, completely monopolized the All-Ohio eleven selected by a vote of coaches and writers. Oberlin and Miami shared honors, each placing four men. Bowling Green won two positions and Baldwin Wallace one.

First team selections follow, listed in the following sequence—position, player, college and home town:

Mt. Gilead Basketball Coach Has Only 3 Lettermen Back

* * *

By CHARLES ELLIOTT

It would be asking a near-miracle of the Mt. Gilead High school basketball team, inexperienced and young as it is, to mark up a record this season corresponding to the 16 won and six lost slate of last winter.

What's more, the Morrow county cagers, coached by Bob Blose, will have to swallow more than their fill of aspirin to shake off the headache brought on by the wicked 18-game 1943-44 schedule which has been drawn up for them. With their opener against Iberia ten days away, the Mt. Gileadites don't see any spot on their schedule which could be considered "soft."

Coach Blose gave this pre-season picture of Mt. Gilead prospects for the coming campaign: "The prospects for a good season are average; since we've practiced only two weeks, there isn't really anything definite I could tell you. We are hoping for a better than average season."

Three Lettermen Back

Blose has only three players who at this point appear to be dependables. They are the three returning lettermen from last year's successful squad, Malcolm Boggs and Bill Neal, seniors, and Carl Davis, a junior. Another letter-winner last year who was being groomed for regular service this season was taken by the Navy in September.

The remainder of the squad, which at the present numbers 21 boys, is composed largely of untested courtmen. However, as Blose is silently hoping, there may be some latent talent among them.

Most of the time, Blose single-handed supervises the Mt. Gilead cagers, although Supt. D. L. Musselman, when he finds time, lends his assistance as a coach. Blose came to Mt. Gilead last year after serving as head mentor at Carey High school for several seasons. He is a graduate of Ohio Northern university.

Mt. Gilead Schedule

Among the Mt. Gilead opponents this is year is Fredericktown, whom the Morrow countians meet twice. Ollie Cline, who made football history this fall as a fullback on the Freddie eleven, will perform on the court this winter.

The Mt. Gilead schedule follows:

Dec. 7—Iberia, away.
Dec. 10—Edison, at home.
Dec. 14—Sunbury, away.
Dec. 17—Marion St. Mary at home.
Dec. 22—Richwood at home.
Jan. 7—Claridon, at home.
Jan. 11—Galion, at home.
Jan. 15—Fredericktown, away.
Jan. 18—Cardington, at home.
Jan. 21—Edison, away.
Jan. 28—Crestline, at home.
Jan. 29—Chesterville, away.
Feb. 4—Marion St. Mary, away.
Feb. 8—Chesterville, at home.
Feb. 11—Cardington, away.
Feb. 18—Crestline, away.
Feb. 19 — Fredericktown, at home.

Food Costs Reported Up in Ohio Cities

By The Associated Press

CLEVELAND, Nov. 26 — Consumers' food costs advanced .5 per cent in Columbus, O., and Indianapolis, Ind., during the month ending Oct. 19, increased .7 per cent in Detroit and .1 per cent in Louisville, Ky., but declined .1 per cent in Cincinnati, O., the department of labor's regional bureau of statistics reported today.

In a series of reports made public by William L. Phillips, regional price economist, the bureau announced Cleveland's consumer food costs were unchanged in the month surveyed, but reported the average food bill for Clevelanders Oct. 19 was 9.2 per cent greater than a year ago.

Food costs to Columbus consumers increased 7.3 in a year, and is now 41 per cent greater than the level of January, 1941, the base date of the 15 per cent little steel wage increase formula.

Poll Gives Bricker Big Lead in His Own State

By GEORGE GALLUP
Director, American Institute of Public Opinion

PRINCETON, N. J., Nov. 26—Republican leaders casting a symbolic eye toward Governor John W. Bricker as the prospective nominee in 1944 can launch the campaign with the talking point that Ohio's three-time governor leads all other Republican prospects by a wide margin in his home state.

Certainly, no other candidate will be likely to risk his political fortunes by entering the Ohio primaries against Governor Bricker.

A poll just completed by the Institute in all parts of Ohio establishes the fact that as of today Bricker gets more than twice as many votes as the next highest candidate, Governor Dewey of New York.

This is shown by replies when Republican and Democratic voters throughout the state were asked which of six men mentioned freely as Republican presidential possibilities they would prefer.

Following is the vote:

Bricker	40%
Dewey	18
Willkie	16
MacArthur	16
Taft	7
Stassen	3

Governor Bricker's chief task along has been to make himself better known among the rank and file in sections of the country other than the Mid-West. The present figures leave no doubt about what the people of Ohio, who do know him, think about him as 1944 presidential timber.

Another indication of Governor Bricker's strength in his home state is revealed in the attitude of his constituents toward him as a governor.

In an earlier poll, when asked what kind of job they think Governor Bricker is doing, only eight per cent of the voters said they thought he has done a poor job, nearly 50 per cent rated his job outstanding or better than average.

FEEDER STOCK SALES SHOW RAPID GAIN

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, Nov. 27 — Sales of feeder and stocker cattle at four principal livestock markets, which were unusually low during the summer months, have expanded appreciably in recent weeks, the department of agriculture's statistical market review disclosed today.

Stocker and feeder cattle are purchased mainly by farmers in the mid-western corn belt, who place the cattle on a grain diet to increase their weight and improve the quality of their meat. These cattle are then sent to market for slaughter in the winter or spring.

The sharp slump in feeder and stocker buying during July and August gave rise to fears that beef production would become a seasonal crop. Livestock observers see a more favorable outlook as a result of the recent improvement in feeder shipments.

Sales of calves, however, still are running well under last year—meaning more of these animals are going directly to slaughtering houses, rather than to feeders for further fattening. This condition is attributed to feed grain shortages and doubts concerning profit prospects from long-term feeding.

Cocoanut Grove Victim Leaves Boston Hospital

By The Associated Press

BOSTON, Nov. 27 — Constant loser at gin rummy but winner in a battle for survival, Coast Guardsman Clifford Johnson, 22, of Sumner, Mo., who lived through burns of 67 per cent of his body area received in the Cocoanut Grove disaster a year ago, left city hospital yesterday for convalescence at the Brighton Marine hospital.

"I don't like to leave," he said, glancing at his nurse, Miss Mercy Smith, chief winner in innumerable gin rummy games. "Everybody here has been so good to me. But I figure the Marine hospital is one step closer to recovery."

Johnson left in a wheel chair because of a knee injury recently received in a fall in the hospital's corridor.

Dr. Newton C. Browder, city hospital, paid tribute to Dr. Robert Henry Aldrich, Boston surgeon, whose triple analin dye burn therapy was used on Johnson, whose recovery was considered as miraculous by medical authorities.

Private John Doe Sends $100 Back to Shelby

By The Associated Press

HATTIESBURG, Miss., Nov. 27—The Camp Shelby post bank received a letter signed "Private John Doe" and containing five twenty-dollar bills.

The letter said "Private Doe" while stationed at Shelby was given $100 too much when he cashed a check and, although he knew of the error at the time, "the temptation was too great to return the money."

Holding the $100 got me worried. I am sorry you had to wait so long," the letter concluded.

Wild Rabbit Sale Prohibited in Ohio

The fact that the office of price administration has established a ceiling price on rabbits, including wild hares as well as the domestic quadrupeds, does not mean that wild rabbits can be sold in Ohio, it was pointed out today by OPA district official at Columbus.

On the contrary, sale of wild rabbits is prohibited under Ohio laws and in OPA regulation establishing ceiling prices does not in any way authorize or make legal their sale. The same thing applies to squirrel, pheasant and other game which may be taken by hunter, but which may not be offered for sale.

DO YOU LIKE TO SEE CHILDREN SMILE?

I'm sure you do. Almost every one does. Their happy expression seems to start with a gleam in their eye then a glow on their face that spreads until it lights up their face.

What a price people would give to see their faces light up in such exhuberance. And, yet you can do it and make money besides. A lot of toys aren't being made this year, what with metal conservation and the like. Many children will have to get along with used toys. If you have a doll that was Judy's or a truck that was Butch's, perhaps you have been keeping them as memories, salvage and sell them now. Make that memory live again.

STOCKS ADD TO PRICE DECLINE

Prospects of Peace Send Prices to Lower Levels Again Today.

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, Nov. 27 — Stock owners today continued to adjust [illegible] on the idea victory in Europe could be nearer than generally expected and most market leaders added fractions to their recent decline.

Dealings were slack throughout, transfers of around 300,000 shares being among the smallest for the past several months. Mild year-end tax selling was a handicap and numerous customers trimmed commitments or remained aloof pending possible international news breaks over Sunday.

Allied mails was an exception to the main trend, tallying 2 points or so in the wake of Friday's softness.

Boeing and Douglas Aircraft edged into new low ground for the year. Other backward performers included U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Glenn Martin, Santa Fe, Southern Pacific, Chesapeake & Ohio, American Telephone, Western Union "A," Deere, Westinghouse, Kennecott and Standard Oil (NJ). Resistant were General Electric, Johns-Manville, American Can and International Harvester.

Pitfalls of Love

By ADELE GARRISON

BEFORE I could answer, Dicky was on his feet, his right hand thrust out in passionate negation of my father's proposal.

"No, dad, no! I can't permit that!" he cried. "You know what a monstrous beast Redfield is, and in his place in that cast is his dearest possession. Madge would be in the position of snatching a juicy piece of meat from a starving tiger."

Pulls Dicky's Coat

I pulled at his coat so hard that he had to sit down before I pulled him down.

"Wait!" I said trying to make my voice comprehending as well as peremptory. "Let father explain."

"Thank you, daughter," he said, but with his eyes fixed on my husband, whose flushed face showed that he was as angry at me as he was aghast at my father's proposal.

"I can't understand your feeling, Richard," he said. "Indeed, as you will realize, if you reflect an instant, I share your objections. But I should like you to listen to me for a little, while I tell you some things you do not yet know. When I have finished, if it is your decision that Margaret should not undertake this mission, then I will withdraw my request.

Madge Keeps Silent

I knew better than to say anything, although I wanted to cry out that I was ready to do anything he asked.

But at the same time, I found my knees shaking so violently that I was glad I was not required to get to my feet. I doubted that I could have reached an upright posture without clinging ignominiously to some support. I folded my hands in my lap and drew a tight rein upon my terror of this thing I might be asked to do.

"Let me explain first," he began, "this interview with Steve will be staged in a balcony apartment where just outside guards will be ready to spring to Margaret's aid at one word from her. There will be little or no danger of her receiving any bodily harm from Steve, especially as she, no doubt, will have her own tiny silencer pistol within reach.

"I repeat, there is little or no danger of Margaret's receiving any bodily harm," he went on, "but harm to her nerves is something else again. I can imagine that Steve will not be a very quieting object once he finds out what is in store for him."

He paused, fitted his finger tips together again, and looked steadily at me.

Spencer Explains

"I shall have to explain the whole situation to you," he said. "In the first place, while Milner's part in this organization we are tracking down, is much greater than I thought, the role Stephen Redfield is playing is a comparatively minor one. He is a clever and efficient messenger boy. That is all."

Dicky stirred from his tense posture.

"Pretty efficient, I should say, to get himself $50,000 dollars of Georges' money," he commented.

"Do you think he got it for himself?" my father countered. "No. He probably was to get a cut for his work, but that money was to go to Milner, either for his own use, or for the use of the organization. Milner had Ruth Hays take it to Steve, first, because Steve was the man who had forged the note purporting to come from Goerges; second, because he did not wish Ruth Hayes to know too much about the ultimate destination of the money, and third, because, if there were any slip-ups, he would be rafely out of that particular angle. That is, the money would be found in Steve's possession.

Original Plan

"My first plan," my father went on, "was to have Phil discharge Steve and I would not arrest

YOUR HEALTH

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

Diet Deficiencies

WE ALL more or less have food habits, which we acquired one way or another. Few are strictly and rigidly correct so I once sat down to a luncheon with a group of physiologists. It was a hard and everyone ordered his own. From a scientific standpoint, what these experts ate was pure horror.

Most of our food habits are based on prejudice, many formed early in life and can almost be called hereditary. My mother believed cucumbers were bad for her and proclaimed this belief in no uncertain terms, and my father thought tomatoes were poisonous. These prejudices influenced me for many years and prevented my consumption of a dish I now enjoy very much.

R. M. Dorcus, who has made a study of food habits found that 21 per cent of 5,000 persons examined thought meat hard to digest, 50 per cent avoided it because they thought it fattening. As a matter of scientific fact meat is one of the easiest things that man digests, and whether a substance is fattening or not depends on how much of it you eat.

But meat has been called one of the "high emotional foods."

Diet For Average Person

The Food and Nutrition Board of the National Research Council have published lists of diets which they consider yardsticks for scientific dietetic intake. There are several of these lists suited to various people doing work of various degrees of strenuousness, but a general summary for an average person is as follows:

1 pint of milk.

1 serving of meat, fish or poultry.

2 to 3 slices of whole wheat or enriched bread.

2 to 3 tablespoons of butter, cream or fortified oleomargarine.

2 servings of vegetables.

2 servings of fruit (one citrus—orange, lemon or grapefruit).

3 to 5 eggs weekly.

On the basis of this as a standard two Philadelphia researchers questioned 85 adult patients, male and female, of various ages, selected at random, about their dietary habits.

Dietary Deficiencies

They found that very few Americans instinctively select a well balanced diet.

For instance, 40 per cent did not eat enough protein (represented in the dietary by milk, eggs and meat). Seventy-five per cent didn't get enough to eat. 2 per cent got too much. Seventy-
